It is not only the individual, who is frequently the recipient of ordinary mail, but also the firm, who is often guilty of laxity in this respect. A fault might be to have its street or post office address, or the stationery used for its correspondence and on its bill-headings, etc., too. Also, a firm could see that all its correspondence, which is often of a very much more importance than that of individuals, is properly directed.

Don't say, if you are a prominent business man or an old resident of the city, "But I am well known in Edmonton and my mail ought to find me easily on that account." Rather be "well-knowing" and remember that a post office always has a big up

Isn't that if you are a prominent business man or an old resident of the city? But I am just well known in my own neighbourhood and I am not so easily on that account. Rather, my well-knowing and remembering the names of the people in the position of employees who have recently come to this city, and some of whom I have known for years, cannot be expected to know one another personally better than Mr. McGehee knows the fact that your mailing address is 1000 Avenue Road. I am sure that your duties to those who have written towards you.

It is a great disappointment that although the daily regarding the treatment and mistreatment of mail are justified, very large proportion are due to the fact that the mail is not properly handled.

The heaviest smokes of the year will be open as usual, and it would be a great pleasure to see the employees if the public generally would use their duty in the way of carefully checking the mail and making their correct address be, and if there is any doubt about their correspondence, they should write to the post office, usually are and making use of them in this way. The Western Canadian mail is the best in the world.

tion of employees who have recently come to this city, and some only recently arrived in this country, who cannot be expected to know one Mr. or another. It is true that the postmaster considers the fact of your being away from home in some quarters does not lessen your duties to those who have written towards you.

But all the complaints that are made daily regarding the treatment and mistreatment of mail are justified. A very large proportion are due to inefficient or incorrect addresses.

The heaviest season of the year will be here in a few days, and the great envelopes to the postal employees if the public generally would do their duty in the way of carefully stating their correspondents' addresses, and their names, would be greatly lessened. I have no doubt about their correspondents' addresses, in asking what the usual are and making use of them. This way, the heavy Christmas mail season in western Canada would be easily solved.

One or two other trifles might be mentioned, and, although they are trifles, they are "mighty atoms" in their way:

Don't put mail matter in a "Keep your city clean" rubbish bin! Not even though it be painted a ruddy color.

Post all mail early, especially that intended for Christmas, and don't forget that it takes at the very least two weeks to get Christmas greetings and presents to travel to people and long to greater distances.

Remember that the letter box and the parcel receptacle which are so handy at the corner of the street are only intended for occasional mail, and to go to amuck like them both up until the letters, papers, parcels, etc., are picked out. If you have more than half a dozen letters take them to the post office, it's the proper place for them. The same applies to the newspapers and parcels even though they may be small ones.

Kind note that in the Edmonton office there are three letter boxes, one for city letters (city does not include Strathcona), one for letters to other places in or parts of Canada, and a third for foreign (including British). Also note that North Edmonton, West Edmonton and Strathcona should not be put in the city box, and, further, that Strathcona Post Office has not yet been changed to South Edmonton.

If you are sending anything

Do use envelopes which are not of brittle nature. Many of such envelopes are mutilated by contact with water letters before they are even selected from the boxes.

Christmas season is coming on, when bills are exceptionally heavy in this country, and are consequently difficult to handle; and don't forget that you assist the Post Offices by observing the above rules as far as possible, the greatest advantage will accrue to you in better and more correct correspondence.

Finally, keep it up when Christmas is over. Western towns and cities are having longer days, but the population is still so much nomadic, and these two facts make it all the more important that mail be correctly observed.

Week's Ocheum Vandeville Bill as presented at the Empire theatre last night. The most pleasing feature of the show was the singing of "The Song of the Songster," a song which the thrushlike valet sang. The most disappointing feature was the roughness of the humor in the headline sketch in which Bill R. Van was the particular center of attraction.

Sophy Bernard, who sang the negro melody, "The Song of the Songster," in a charming voice, she pleased the audience, particularly in the purple balcony. She would be better advised to try more of these instead of the almost untellable medley of airs and words which she sang in the first act. Her simple yet superb vocalization of
